CLOSE CALL FOR LIFE

Black Cap Adjusted and Stood or Step When Respite Arrived.

Cuerro, Tex., Aug. 26.—Sam Stiles, the negro preacher sentenced to hang today for murder, was respited for two days by Governor Lanham, but it was about as close a call as a human ever had.

The message came to the sheriff as he was lowering the black cap over his face. He was standing on the trap, his feet and arms tied, and he made his speech protesting his innocence and shaken hands with his friends when the message, reading. "At the request of Judge Wilson I have respited Sam Stiles for two days," was handed to the sheriff.

The interest and excitement was intense after hearing the talk. Sentiment is divided as to his guilt.

袋

Stiles was charged with assassinating Doom Edwards, with whose wife he was infatuated. He thought he could win the widow. She was first arrested as an accomplice, but was soon released and was the principal witness against him. She swore positively that she saw him at the window with a gun just before the killing, and that he had talked with her. She visited him at the jall last night and begged him not to die with a lie on his lips. Stiles said tonight that he knew an innocent man would not suffer the penalty of the law. He held a prayer meeting service.

"I am just up from a hard spell o the flux," (dysentery) says Mr. T. Pinner, a well known merchant Drummond, Tenn.
